Get custom sounds from an app like Zedge.Change default sound: Go to Apps & Notifications > Notifications > Advanced > Default notification sound, then choose a new sound.Change Messages and Gmail sounds via notification settings. In the Phone app, go to Settings > Sounds and vibration > Phone ringtone. This article explains how to change and customize Android notification sounds for text messages, calls, email, social media, and just about any app on your smartphone. Notification sounds are just one of many ways you can customize your Android, and each version of Android refines the process. Your Android has a setting for the default notification sound for all apps; you can also change sounds by app. Here's how to change the default sound, and how to change the notification sounds for Google Messages, Gmail, and the Phone app. Open Contacts, tap the three-dot menu, tap Set Ringtone, choose the desired ringtone from the list that appears, then tap Save. Open Settings. Tap Apps & Notifications. Tap Notifications. Scroll to the bottom of the screen and tap Advanced. Tap Default notification sound. Then you can browse the ringtones page, which is split into categories including My Sounds, Pixel Sounds, Classical Harmonies, and others. At the top, it says what the current default is. In this case, it's called Chime–Pixel Sounds. If you're using a non-Pixel phone, your ringtone options will be different. You can also change the notification sound in popular Android apps including Messages, Gmail, and the Phone app. If you get a lot of notifications and want to know without looking that it's a new text message, you can change the notification sound easily. Use your own sound or any of the sounds that come pre-loaded on your Android smartphone. Here's how to change the notification sound in the Google Messages app. Open the Google Messages app. Tap the three-dot menu in the top right. Tap Settings. Tap Notifications. Scroll down to Other. Tap Default. Tap Advanced. Tap Sound. If you don't see these menu options, look for Other notifications > Sound. You'll see the same options as above for the global default sound. Get lots of emails? Change the notification sound for any Gmail address that syncs with your smartphone. This way, you know by sound if you've got a new email, and whether it's personal or work-related. Here's how to change the notification sound in the Gmail app. Open the Gmail app. Tap the hamburger menu. Scroll down and tap Settings. Tap your email address. You can change the notifications sounds for each email address you have synced on your phone. Tap Manage notifications. Tap Advanced > Sound. Choose from the available options. Android smartphones from the same manufacturer, such as Google or Samsung usually have the same default ringtone. Thus, when several Google Pixel owners are in the same room, no one knows whose phone is ringing unless they've changed the default. Here's how to do it. Open the Phone app. Tap the three-dot menu in the top right. Tap Settings. Tap Sounds and vibration. Tap Phone ringtone. Choose from the available options. There are two ways to get custom sounds for your Android: downloading them from an app or creating your own. One popular app is called Zedge, which has thousands of free notification sounds and ringtones in all sorts of categories (music genres, sound effects, etc.). You can create and set custom ringtones right from the app. You can also create a custom sound from your favorite song or movie line, for example. In this case, you'll need to use an Android file manager to add the ringtone to your smartphone. Here's how to manually add a custom sound to your settings. Go to Settings > Apps & notifications > Notifications. Scroll down and tap Advanced > Default notification sound. Tap My Sounds. Tap + (plus sign). Find and select your custom sound. Your new ringtone should appear in the list of available ringtones in the My Sounds menu. FAQ How do I turn on the notification light on an Android? To set up flashing light notifications on an Android, tap Settings > Accessibility > Hearing > Flash Notifications. Next to Camera Light and Screen, turn on Flash Notifications. If your Android doesn't support flash notifications, check for third-party apps on the Google Play Store. How do I get rid of the AVG notification on Android? While you can't completely get rid of the "sticky" AVG Antivirus notification, you can minimize it. For Android 10 or later, tap and pull down the status bar, tap and hold the AVG notification, and then tap Details. Tap Sticky or Permanent, and select Minimize notifications.
